

What are your core values and beliefs?

Answer: As a front end developer my core values are revolve around collaboration, innovation and user centric design. I believe that I will be a good developer in future. I am exploring many things every day, that will make me a good developer.

What are your goals and aspirations?

Answer: Right now primary goal is to excel in front end development and specializing in react and contribute to the creation of dynamic and responsive websites. I aspire to be parts of projects that challenge me to grow and learn, and want to making a meaningful impact into this development industry.

What are the first steps you will take to build your personal brand?

Answer: At first I create account in some social media like linkedin, facebook, twitter etc. There I can post about my personal information. Then I plan to build a portfolio website about me where I can showcase my projects which I build with react.

How does personal branding differ from self promotion, and why is this distinction important?

Answer: Personal branding is about crafting a consistent image that reflects our skills, values, and contributions in our work. It creates reputation based on genuine expertise and meaningful engagement. On the other hand, self-promotion is highlighting our achievements without necessarily aligning with a broader narratives . This distinction is important because , personal branding establishes trust and long term relationships, but self - promotion might be short term relationship.

What are you most proud of?

Answer: I am a react based frontend developer ,so I create projects and use many technologies. Sometimes I faces lot of problems to use this technologies , and when I solve this problem with my skills and dedication, that time I feel the most proud, Cause this give me satisfaction.